Part-time Teaching Faculty Self Reflection

Directions: Reflect on your teaching practices and instructional philosophy by responding to the following questions. Consider your experiences in the classroom, interactions with students, and your own reflection from this or previous semesters.

1. Describe your overall approach to teaching. What strategies do you use to encourage student participation, critical thinking, and success? How do you know whether your students are learning?

2. What aspects of your teaching have been most effective? Identify one or two areas where you believe you can continue to grow as an educator and what support would be helpful in achieving those goals?

3. Is there anything specific you'd like your evaluator to pay attention to during your classroom observation, so the feedback is most useful to you?

4. What have you done to establish or improve your proficiency in Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, and Accessibility (DEIA) related competencies as it relates to your field?

5. (Optional) Please share any additional reflections. Include any support you might need.
