A day in the life of a library volunteer

The Public Library is a Council Chambers. Ron Holtman

INFORMATION

The Public Library provides essential services to the community that cannot be replicated in any other form. The library is a place where people can come together and share knowledge, ideas, and experiences. It is a vital resource for education, research, entertainment, and community engagement.

Volunteers are a cornerstone of the library's operation. They assist patrons with a variety of tasks, including checking out and returning books, helping with technology, and providing reference services. Volunteers also play a critical role in maintaining the library's collections and facilities.

Volunteers are trained and supervised by library staff to ensure that they have the skills and knowledge to provide high-quality service to patrons. They work alongside professional staff to create a welcoming and supportive environment for all library users.

There are many different ways to volunteer at the library. Some volunteers work in the library's main branch, while others volunteer at branches in the community. Some volunteers work at a specific time each week, while others volunteer on an as-needed basis.

Volunteers are encouraged to share their interests and skills with the library. They may help with special events, assist with technical tasks, or provide language and cultural support to patrons.

Volunteers are an important part of the library's mission to serve the community. They bring a unique perspective and expertise to the library, helping to enhance the library's programs and services.

Thank you to all the volunteers who make the library a vibrant and welcoming place.

By Daniel Brown