Program Review - Health and Wellness

Program Summary

2023-2024

Prepared by: Ally Briano

What are the strengths of your area?: Health and Wellness courses continue to maintain a high level of rigor while we offer the highest possible academic quality to our students. Our success our climbing back after the Covid years set us back a little, and our FTES are back up, and it is visible in a new energy we see on campus in terms of in-person students, and increased activity. Now that enrollment is almost all the way back up and we have more FTEF back in person teaching 100% face to face, our success rates are recovering too and we project that they will climb to higher than they were before the Covid years. We have climbed back up to 78%, which is 4 percentage points higher than it was in 2021, and we are planning to continue to climb.

We are thrilled that our students are excited to be back in person, and we are noticing improved student-to-student interaction in the Canvas Discussion boards. Now that the campus is back to business as usual, we are watching for a reemergence of the 80% success rate we were seeing before.

What improvements are needed?: In the first year of Covid, we saw a drop of 184 down to 138, which is 46 points. In 2021, we only dropped 15 points which is a bit more comfortable. This year, we are back to only a 4 point drop as mentioned before in our success rates, and this seems to be a trend across the curriculums, and qualitative and quantitative data both work together to prove our improved attendance, FTE's, and success rate.

Describe any external opportunities or challenges.: We have adapted our curriculum making it harder to avoid work, and making it more difficult to make excuses related to illness or Covid, but we still struggle against a mentality that its okay to miss school more often. We are now offering copies of classwork on Canvas, and are also offering credit for attendance to discourage students from staying home and only turning in work online. We continue to get the students back up to speed, and work with them as they return to a full time in-person schedule.

Overall SLO Achievement: SLO's are being met.

Changes Based on SLO Achievement: No changes at this time.

Outcome cycle evaluation: In this assessment cycle, we saw gains in our overall assessment data, and FTE's, and we are working to rebuild our campus and be known as an in-person school where there is a high level of activity worth coming in for, despite the fact that many students would rather take courses online. Our main goal is to raise our success rate back up to 80% or higher, and to make sure our FTES are continuing to climb.
